

EMS providers can play a pivotal role in educating the public about ways they can prevent illness or injury in children. Education Day seeks to highlight educational programs that serve the public as well as the importance of individual EMS provider continuing education. In recognition of Education Day, here are some ways to help the community and EMS personnel learn to care for children in an emergency:

- Host an EMS open house and offer public education presentations and training on the unique needs of children in the prehospital setting.
- Speak to local groups to share why EMS is a valuable part of your community and educate them about local resources for pediatric emergency care.
- Host a pediatric training course such as PALS, PEPP, or Pediatric Trauma Life Support for Prehospital Providers.

Click on the icon for:

Pediatric Education
for Prehospital Professionals
THIRD EDITION

American Academy of Pediatrics
DEDICATED TO THE HEALTH OF ALL CHILDREN™

Innovation and Improvement Center

Additional Resources
on Pediatric
EMS Education